

City at the AAG Conference 2012

3310 CITY Sessions (1): Beyond 'Cities for People, Not for Profit'

3210 CITY Sessions (2): The Uses and Abuses of 9/11

3310 CITY Sessions (1):

Beyond 'Cities for People, Not for Profit'

Sunday 26 February

8 - 9.40am

Clinton Suite, Second Floor, Hilton NY

Organisers

Kurt Iveson, University of Sydney
Bob Catterall, CITY

Chair

Bob Catterall, CITY

Panelists

Neil Brenner, Harvard University, Graduate School of Design
Bob Catterall, CITY
Margit Mayer, Freie Universität, Berlin
Sharon M. Meagher, University of Scranton
Justus Uitermark, Department of Sociology, Erasmus University
Antonius Vradis, Occupied London

3210 CITY Sessions (2):

The Uses and Abuses of 9/11

Sunday 26 February

10 - 11:40am

Clinton Suite, Second Floor, Hilton NY

Organisers

Kurt Iveson, University of Sydney
Bob Catterall, CITY

Chair

Kurt Iveson, University of Sydney

Panelists

Bob Catterall, CITY
Nasser Abourahme, Columbia University
Eduardo Mendieta, State University of New York at Stony Brook
Peter Marcuse, Columbia University

Cities for People, Not for Profit

Critical Urban Theory and the Right for the City

Visit our Stand and Get
20% off the Book Today!

“Written against the backdrop of both the global financial crisis and intensifying social movements, this collection of essays is a wonderful example of why critical theory matters for social change”

Professor Ananya Roy

Edited by Neil Brenner, Peter Marcuse and Margit Mayer

CITY

Routledge and City journal are happy to offer a discounted personal subscription rate, allowing you access to top urban studies research.

For £40 you will get access to 6 issues of the journal, both print and online versions.

To find out more, contact tf.adhocprocessing@informa.com, quoting 'CITY Special Rate'.

(CITY published a special issue composed of an early version of many of the essays that are now in the book and is continuing the discussion - see also its website www.city-analysis.net)

“CITY proved to be an ideal forum for discussion of the problematic developed in this book because of its long-standing commitment to bringing together, in readable form, theoretical reflections on the contemporary urban condition, analyses of practical experiences in contemporary urban conflicts, and perhaps most crucially, explorations of their necessary, if constantly evolving interrelationships.”

Neil Brenner

Some markers of the path of that discussion can be found in the following pieces published in CITY:

Vol. 14, Issue 4

'Cities for People, Not for Profit': papers from the 2010 AAG Conference

Introduction

Bob Catterall, pages 425-426

Critical thinking about the Right to the City: Mapping garbage routes

Sharon M. Meagher, pages 427-433

Critical reflections on being critical: Reading for deviance, dominance or difference?

Kurt Iveson, pages 434-441

The city to come: Critical urban theory as utopian mapping

Eduardo Mendieta, pages 442-447

Vol. 13, Issue 2-3 - Editorial

Bob Catterall, pages 173-175

Vol 13, Issue 4

Cities for people, not for profit - from a radical-libertarian and Latin American perspective

Marcelo Lopes de Souza, pages 483-492

Cities after oil (one more time)

Adrian Atkinson, pages 493-498

Is it all coming together? Thoughts on urban studies and the present crisis: (16) Comrades against the counterrevolutions: bringing people (back?) in

Bob Catterall, pages 531-550

Vol.15, Issue 3-4

An era and its end: 9/11, the Arab world and the return of the subject

Nasser Abourahme,

The tabooed after-life of 9/11

Peter Marcuse, pages 392-406

The Spatiality of a social struggle in Greece

Regina Mantanika and Hara Kouki, pages 482-490

[with an Introduction by Antonis Vradis]

Vol.16, Issue 1-2 - Reviews of the book by William Tabb, Mark Davidson and Fran Tonkiss